August 2025 Provider Spotlight: John Stinebaugh

John Stinebaugh began counseling in 2007. Before living and working in Wyoming, John has worked in public education and community mental health in rural Kansas and Colorado, providing a wide array of services to children and their families. John is also a clinical fellow with the American Association of Marriage and Family Therapy and was a graduate of its inaugural Leadership Cohort in 2017. John completed his bachelor's degree in human development at Amridge University in 2009 and his master's degree in marriage and family therapy in 2012. John was honorably discharged from the United States Marines in 2007.

In the office, you can find him providing guidance and support to councilors and supervisors, developing businesses, or training leaders to improve their skills and communities. He may even be doing a session with his therapy dog Huxley, or playing games as a Certified Geek Therapist.

Telehealth in Schools Tips

School-based telehealth makes it easier for students to get care for common physical and mental health needs without having to miss class or leave the school building.

These virtual visits can include:

- Primary care (like checkups, minor injuries, asthma care)
- Mental health services (such as counseling and therapy)
- Education on healthy habits

Preparing for a visit: Learn what caregivers and school staff should have ready to ensure a smooth appointment.

Healthcare Providers: We Need Your Help!

WyTN has launched a survey to help us understand the current telehealth landscape in Wyoming from the perspective of healthcare providers. This survey aims to gather insights from providers related to the successes and challenges of telehealth implementation and adaptation.

The results from this survey will help us identify and address specific barriers that currently limit telehealth use in Wyoming, with the ultimate goal of developing a more comprehensive telehealth network throughout the state.

Anyone who provides direct services to clients is invited to participate in this anonymous and voluntary survey – whether you currently provide telehealth services or not. The survey can be accessed by clicking this link, or by using the QR code above.

Excellence in Telehealth Award Nominations - Due Today!

The Wyoming Telehealth Network (WyTN) is currently accepting nominations for this year's Dr. James Bush Award for Excellence in Telehealth! This annual award was established in 2022 to recognize a telehealth champion in Wyoming who has accomplished outstanding work in the field of telehealth, including helping to remove barriers to implementation and adoption, innovative programs and activities, technology, patient and/or provider support, education, and training.
